And Material Gathered From the Following Resources:

The Washington Labor and Industry Department issued a Workplace Violence Workbook that provides detailed assistance in creating a workplace violence program. It has help in the following areas:

- Categorizing violence and risk factors
- Case scenarios
- Sample prevention and response plan
- Training techniques
- Weapons policy
- Domestic violence in the workplace
- Selected laws and regulations
- Other resources.

The workbook also includes the following samples of useful forms:

- Assault Incident Report Form for employees to report any threatening remark or act of physical violence whether experienced or observed
- Threat and Assault Log to summarize and characterize reports of threats and assaults over a year.
- Employee Hazard Assessment Survey Form, for periodic surveying of employee ideas and gathering suggestions on your Workplace Prevention of Violence program.

Washington Labor and Industries has two internal policies that might be of some assistance:

- Workplace and Domestic violence Prevention, L&I policy 8.06
- Handling Assaults, Threats and Harassment, L&I policy 9.03
